SS8H3A: CAUSES of the American Revolution

The French and Indian War left Britain in huge debt. To raise money to pay for the war, King George III decided to tax the colonists. However, the colonists did not have representatives in Britain's government. This caused the colonists to be angry and resentful towards Britain.

The Stamp Act of 1765 set a tax on all legal documents, permits, commercial contracts, newspapers, pamphlets, and playing cards. After paying the tax, colonists received a stamp on these documents. However, the stamps were very expensive and could only be paid for with silver or gold. Colonists in both the North and South demanded the repeal of the Stamp Act. However, in Georgia, people felt differently. Although there was outrage in the Colonies with the passing of the Stamp Act, the opponents of the Stamp Act in Georgia were relatively few. For one thing, Georgia was the youngest colony. Many of its residents were newcomers and were more loyal to Britain and understanding of its policies.
